Traditional Chinese Medicine Theory Courses

These foundational theory courses are specifically designed to meet the requirements of the ICMQ Medical Qigong certification program.

TCM Theory I covers the fundamentals of Traditional Chinese Medicine Theory with specific relevance to the Medical Qigong Practitioner. In addition to essential theoretical concepts, this course covers etiology and pathogenesis of disease patterns, as well as treatment principle strategies.

This course meets the requirements for the Medical Qigong Therapist (MQT) level of certification.

TCM Theory II delves deeper into the diagnostic systems and principles within Traditional Chinese Medicine. Adjunct therapeutic techniques are explored as well as advanced and applied channel theory. Tongue and pulse diagnosis are also introduced.

This advanced course meets the requirement for the Masters (MMQ) Certification program.
